

INK DROP

A short film by Alexandre
Osmoze Brakha

Synopsis

Inspired by a video of a dancer, an artist creates a free illustration of her where he covers her skin with a colorful floral body painting.

As the artist sleeps deeply, the ink escapes from the paper, leaves the apartment and ventures into the Tokyo night in search of something, or rather, in search of someone... The inspiring dancer. Inviting itself into her room, the ink covers the dancer's body.

Faced with the sleeping and lonely city, a witness to the magic of the moment, the dancer fully expresses herself in a choreography filled with emotions until sunrise.

Dream or reality? Is that the real question?

"Art is the link between us"
